संगठन विशिष्टता, कृत्य और कर्तव्य

पृष्ठभूमि :

निरंतर बढ़ते औद्योगिकीकरण से पृथ्वी पर जल, वायु और मिट्टी का प्रदूषण बढ़ता जा रहा है। प्रदूषण से सबसे अधिक जलवायु प्रभावित होती है, जिसका सीधा कुप्रभाव मनुष्य व अन्य प्राणियों के शरीर व स्वास्थ्य पर पड़ रहा है। बढ़ते प्रदूषण को नियंत्रित करने के लिए कई कानूनी उपाय किये गये हैं जिनमें जल प्रदूषण नियंत्रण अधिनियम 1974 व वायु प्रदूषण नियंत्रण अधिनियम 1981 प्रमुख हैं।

प्रदूषण के अतिरिक्त, मनुष्य द्वारा संग्रह, भोग व विलासता से प्रेरित होकर अपनी नित प्रति बढ़ती आवश्यकताओं और इच्छाओं की पूर्ति के लिए प्रकृतिक संसाधनों का अन्धाधुंध शोषण व दूरूपयोग से भी धरती का पर्यावरणीय संतुलन बिगड़ता जा रहा है। वनस्पति व जीव जन्तुओं का ह्यास, जलवायु परिवर्तन, प्राकृतिक आपदायें और नये-नये जटिल रोगों का बढ़ता प्रकोप पर्यावरणीय असंतुलन की परिणति है। विकास और पर्यावरण के मध्य सामन्जस्य व संतुलन पुनर्स्थापित करने के लिए 20वीं सदी के उत्तरार्ध से विश्वभर में विभिन्न स्तरों पर प्रयाश शुरू किये गये। इसी क्रम में भारत सरकार द्वारा संविधान (42 वां संशोधन) अधिनियम, 1976 के द्वारा पर्यावरण संरक्षण को नागरिकों का मौलिक कर्तव्य के रूप में संविधान के अनुच्छेद 51 A(g) में सम्मिलित किया गया।

इसमें कहा गया है कि “प्राकृतिक पर्यावरण जिनमें वन, नदियां, झीलें व वन्य जन्तु सम्मिलित हैं की रक्षा करना प्रत्येक नागरिक का कर्तव्य है। इसके अतिरिक्त संविधान सशोधन अधिनियम के अनुच्छेद 48 A के द्वारा पर्यावरण सुरक्षा व समृद्धि तथा वन व वन्य जन्तुओं के संरक्षण हेतु सरकार का भी दायित्व निर्धारित किया गया है। इन दायित्वों के निर्वहन के लिए सरकार द्वारा कई कदम उठाये गये हैं, जिनमें पर्यावरण संरक्षण व प्रदूषण नियंत्रण बोर्ड की स्थापना भी सम्मिलित है।

STATE OF ENVIRONMENT REPORT - 2004

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

A. Background

The State of Uttarakhand has embarked on a process of preparing its first ever assessment to prepare a State of Environment Report. Under the ongoing national programme, the State Government recognized that this national process has a huge scope for generating positive transitions in the status of conservation and sustainable development in the fledgling State. To this purpose the Government of Uttarakhand nominated the Uttarakhand Environmental Protection and Pollution Control Board (UEPPCB) as the state host institution to undertake this effort from the Tenth Plan Period. The board has taken the services of IDFC (Infrastructure Development and Finance Company Ltd.), which has been a part of several initiatives in the State. IDFC have anchored the process with Academy for Mountain Environment (AME) as the local institution.

Uttarakhand became a separate state carved out of hill districts and sub Himalayan regions of Uttar Pradesh in the year 2000 and is the newly formed hill state in the Indian Himalayan Region. The formation of the new state is the outcome of people's initiative with a vision to evolve a hill oriented development process for the people of the state. The geographical location (latitudes 29°05' N to 31°02' N and longitudes 77°04' E to 81°04' E) resource setting of Uttarakhand is unique and shares its borders with China and Nepal and hence also becomes strategic. The population of Uttarakhand is spread across 13

Districts and 95 blocks and is estimated at 8,479,562 persons in 2001. The DPSIR framework of analysis was chosen to lead to specific and contextual diagnosis. The driving forces for the State of Environment have clearly been;

1. The Liberalisation, Privatisation and Globalisation model of economic development being relentlessly pursued;
2. The rapid changes that occurred due to the 1962 War and
3. The political and administrative convenience drives many decisions and this too has been a prime driver leading to the current situation.

The ecological footprints are evident of the impacts, which have been induced by driving forces in combination with the natural processes of geological formations in Uttaranchal. Different sets of environmental concerns are: The transient environments like the periglacial regions where the geographical evolution of glacial environments into fluvial environment is currently taking place is a region, which is prone to avalanches, landslides and rapid change in surface morphology. The varied geographical situations brings about several transitional environments, which are prone to dramatic changes with small triggers often beyond the resilience of the systems such as between Bhabhar-Terai, glacial margins etc. The best case of this is the avalanches, which periodically come down with lot of ice and soil, creating flash floods and landslides. (Madhmaheshwar, 1998 Uttarkashi floods, 1978}. The tectonically unstable environments refer to regions along the major thrust and fault belts, which are intrinsically unstable and will be continually prone to impacts from seismic events, small or large. The possibility of human intervention to avoid impacts in these zones is minimal and the best effort would be to understand them in greater detail and address Uttaranchal SoE November 2004 situations where it may snowball into a crisis. (Varnavrat landslides, Uttarkashi). Apart from the nature driven environmental fragility, several inappropriate development regimes have impacted the environment. A number of areas are affected by denudation because of past processes of inappropriate development or neglect such as several areas where mining has degraded the slopes or altered river regimes. The huge costs and time for recovery is well known from the experience of mining in Doon Valley. There are certain communities, which are a part of subsistence environment and need a proactive approach to address their issues. Regions in the rain-shadow areas, isolated valleys and forest villages where the communities have to precariously manage their existence need particular concern and attention than regular process can support (Taungiya villages).

B. State of the Environment

A significant cause of the present state of environment in Uttarakhand has been the development perspective that has motivated state policies and implementation. This perspective has defined the current environmental situation, as well as that of the people.

Land and the People

The people of Uttarakhand - their ecology, their socio-economic status and their culture - are defined by the topography and the climate of the Himalayas. The higher the altitude, the more difficult is the life of the people, and the more isolated they are from so-called development programmes. Living in such harsh conditions, the people have evolved systems of sustainably using and managing their natural resources. Women are the keystone of the sustainable natural resource management systems in the Himalayas. They are therefore the first and most vulnerable victims of processes that tend to destabilise the natural resource base. As such, they have therefore been the leaders of the ecological movements that have originated in the state.

Forests and biodiversity

Forests are the most important natural resource of the people of Uttarakhand. They provide the material base of survival in the mountains - food, fuel, fodder, and shelter. Besides harbouring hundreds of species of medicinal and food plants, the forests of Uttarakhand are also home of several indigenous fauna. Forest policies since British rule have affected the floral and faunal diversity present in the forest, and led to numerous conflicts between people and animals, between people and the state, and between communities. As usual, the worst victims of these conflicts have been women. In the recent decades, both the state and people have come together to experiment with new systems for managing forests sustainably based on a shared responsibility with the community.

Agriculture

The majority of the people of Uttarakhand are involved in agriculture. However, new definitions of productivity have enhanced the introduction of new technologies and crops and cropping systems that have often been particularly unsuitable for the mountain habitat, and have made farming an uneconomical proposition for the farmer.

Water

Though Uttarakhand is considered the Water Reservoir of northern India, its citizens face acute water shortage, for both drinking water and for agricultural use.

Energy

Uttarakhand has tremendous potential for generating energy. However, mega projects like Tehri Dam have huge environmental and socio economic costs.

Transport

Transport is an indicator of development. Developing conventional transport in the mountains can be fraught with difficulties, especially in higher regions. Such systems are associated with destruction of forests and the mountain environment, upsetting the fragile equilibrium of an already fragile region, and with displacement of people and wildlife. Development of conventional transport systems is also associated with increased use of non-renewable energy resources such as fossil fuels, as well as air pollution.

Industry

The economic development of the state is almost always associated directly with industrialisation. Because of the mineral wealth in the region, one of the dominant industries in the state has been mining.

Tourism

Uttarakhand is known as Dev Bhumi i.e. the land of the gods. It has always been the most important state for pilgrimage in the country. However, there is a growing class of people who now visit the state for its other attractions i.e. scenic beauty, biodiversity, trekking and other adventure sports. Tourism, if properly planned, has the potential for becoming the most important revenue earner for the state.

Urbanisation

Uttarakhand has an old history of urbanisation. Dehradun is one of the earliest urban centres created during the time of the British. However, urbanisation in the state is skewed, both as a result of topography, as well as administrative definitions. Urbanisation has a critical impact on the environment. Rapidly expanding unplanned urbanisation leads to the destruction of the surrounding environment, particularly of neighbouring forests. It also causes immense pressures on infrastructure.

Disasters

Disasters in Uttarakhand are as much the result of the geography of the state, as due to human intervention. Many development projects – dams and roads for instance – disturb an already fragile ecosystem, often weakening it in the process. Unplanned urbanisation does not take into account the needs for constructing earthquake proof buildings. While all disasters may not be preventable, the impact of most can be reduced through adequate planning prior to their occurrence. Uttarakhand is the only state to have a Ministry for Disaster Management.

C. Suggested strategies for the State

Institutional Strategies

In Uttarakhand the Environment Department has not evolved as yet, though the responsibility for all policy measures currently rests with the UEPPCB. The Department of Environment should form a part of the existing institutional arrangement and the department should relate to other sectoral departments to bring out a state environment policy in accordance with the National Environment Policy. The Draft National Environment Policy recognizes that the mountain ecosystems are suffering from problems of degradation and lop sided development process. A clear reference to local communities and their livelihood concerns has been highlighted and has pressed on the need to secure the survival needs of the communities. Uttarakhand provides immense ecosystem services downstream without any returns to the state and local communities. The government of Uttarakhand is already negotiating for the same with the central government and has initiated a dialogue in with the XII Finance Commission. It has to be designed in a manner that it does not create conflicts within the communities and between communities and governments. Since new industrial policy has given space to industries with subsidies and other incentives as a driving force. There are enough clean technological aspects, which can be adopted by industrial processes. The UEPPCB will need to scrutinize a number of industrial and hydro-electric projects for which it will need a technical task force to evaluate and present it to the communities. Further, it has been recognized that unfocused external investments do not provide any improvement in the earning capacities of the local communities and the need to explicitly include communities and Panchayats as a shareholders in the enterprise.

Sectoral strategies

The State of Uttarakhand has to introduce sustainable governance measures, as the state cannot afford huge public expenditures on governance and without alternative ways of evolving viable occupational niches for the people. The planning commission also initiated a nationwide programme on agro-climatic regional planning which was also thoroughly done in Chamba block of District Tehri Garhwal. Such a programme involves the local governments and also has the potential to implement it in a decentralized manner. A number of new initiatives are called for, and the State has been attempting some of these already. The significant initiatives that reflect the resource potential of the State and the current global economic scenario include the thrust in organic agriculture, medicinal plants, Bamboo and fibre development, creating infrastructure for software industries and ecotourism and several other measures are needed. However as the government is realizing quickly, these efforts need not just the technology but also Uttarakhand SoE November 2004 financial and institutional mechanisms for hand-holding to achieve significant results for which the Government must function as a true facilitator. In order to ensure that the wealth created while safeguarding the environment is retained locally, the government must ensure that the new initiatives are truly people oriented, rather than centralized initiatives. The fact that Uttarakhand contributes to nearly Rs 11000 crores net bank deposits calls for innovative ways to apply local capital. There is a need to converge various sectoral plans to meet over the overall Environmental Framework at the state and the local level. Like, in the tourism sector, the plans of various sectors such as urban development, transport need to converge when developing destinations, so that the local communities have a say in the planning process, and benefit economically from such development. The promotion of medicinal plants would require that the forest department should have enabling laws so that people can use their van panchayat for more explicit livelihood uses. Concurrently, it would need the banks and rural development departments to increase the resource availability to the people, and scientific and technical departments to provide the requisite inputs for generating high quality products. Therefore the Environmental Policy for the State has to enable streamlining policies that are interdependent and bring them to a common planning framework.

D. Conclusion

Sustainability must be the key basis for development of this complex, fragile and risk prone state with a well-conceived and articulated definition of Sustainable Development. Even though the term has today become a cliché and its popularity is beginning to wane, the concept of sustainable development has however offered a challenge to find some unifying principles for human organization.

1. Sustainable Development at the broadest level could be conceived as a process of using resources that do not deplete the options for the future generation ĩ more cryptically ĩ it means generating more alternatives while conserving existing options.

2. If the processes for Sustainable Development of a community have to lead to its being in harmony with its ecology, then it should demonstrate at least four principles which have been clearly identified which characterize sustainable development viz.

ĩ It has to be environmentally sound and demonstrate the potential to renew;

ĩ It has to be enabling the evolution of a more equitable community;

ĩ It has to be creating a community which is self-reliant or endogenous in accessing its needs and investing into its future and ĩ It has to be economically efficient.

It is also widely recognized that all these principles have to be concurrently adhered to and addressed at various scales (individual through community to the global scales) and different levels of human intervention (policy, programme and practices). The current impasse that we are really faced with arises out of the precarious situation where developmental activities of the past have had a massive impact on deepening widespread poverty, squalor and environmental degradation, but a feeble impact on sustainable development of local communities and their capacities to maintain/improve their environment and well being. The real challenge that stare us in the face, is the challenge to hone our skills, choose our technologies and build our resources in such a manner that it provides for the human needs of Food, Clothing and Shelter and enhance the quality of Water, Energy and Biomass systems. This demands that walk beyond institutions and sectors to seek solutions and it is becoming clear that this can only happen as an accretionary process. While in several parts of the world the Community, Government and Markets have colluded and mutually destroyed the unified Society that represented the best of the republics of the past, the challenge today beyond the basic needs is that the Community, Government and the Market should be able to provide the basic inputs for societal development i.e. health, education and occupation.

ENVIRONMENTAL LABORATORY MANAGEMENT

10.1 Water Quality Monitoring

The Board is responsible for restoration and maintenance of wholesomeness of aquatic resources in the State and to ensure that water quality is being maintained or restored at desired level. The Board is regularly monitoring the water quality of the aquatic resources with the following objectives :

- To enable rational planning of pollution control strategies and their prioritization.
- To assess the nature and extent of pollution control needed in different water bodies or their part.
- To evaluate effectiveness of pollution control measures already in existence.
- To evaluate water quality trend over a period of time.
- To assess the quality of water for designated best use.

The Central Pollution Control Board, under the National Water Monitoring Programme (NWMP) has sponsored water quality monitoring of major rivers of the State. Under this programme, the UEPPCB is monitoring the water quality of various aquatic resources at 13 stations.

10.4 Noise Level Monitoring :

In order to regulate noise level, the government of India has promulgated the Noise Pollution (Regulation and Control) Rules 2000 under the Environment (Protection) Act, 1986. The authority for enforcement of noise pollution control measures and the due compliance of the ambient air quality standards in respect of noise has been prescribed in the said rules.

AMBIENT AIR QUALITY STANDARDS IN RESPECT OF NOISE

Area Code	Category of Area/Zone	Limits in dB(A) Leq*
		Day Time	Night Time
(A)	Industrial Area	75	70
(B)	Commercial Area	65	55
(C)	Residential Area	55	45
(D)	Silence Zone	50	40

Note :-

1. Day time shall mean from 6.00 a.m. to 10.00 p.m.
2. Night time shall mean from 10.00 p.m. to 6.00 a.m.
3. Silence zone is an area comprising not less than 100 meters around hospitals, educational institutions, courts, religious places or any other area which is declared as such by the competent authority.
4. Mixed categories of areas may be declared as one of the four above mentioned categories by the competent authority.

*dB(A) Leq denotes the time weighted average of the level of sound in decibels on Scale

A which is relatable to human hearing.

A “decibel” is a unit in which noise is measured.

“A”, in dB(A) Leq, denotes the frequency weighting in the measurement of noise and corresponds to frequency response characteristics of the human ear.

Leq: It is energy mean of the noise level over a specified period.
